They fit up nice, but they just don't last at all. I have replaced my rake teeth with genuine John Deere teeth and these teeth, and the JD teeth are still all holding up. They always separate at the rubber, with the metal tooth portion being yanked out because there is not much for the rubber to hold onto.

There is a Deere 894 rake for sale and the guy's asking $600 for it. Not having seen it yet myself, he says it's in good condition with faded paint but not all rusty. The tires are supposedly road-worthy. Assuming his description is accurate and that it is in good working condition, what is a fair price for this model?
